Members of the 3rd Arkansas Regiment Volunteer Infantry, Confederate States of America, (above) have set up camp at Appomattox Court House National Historical Park in order to make the last days of the Confederacy a "living history" for visitors to the Park. Their food? Hard Tack and parched corn, some meat (pork) and sassafras tea, as authentic to the 1860's as the dress they wear. Plans Moving Ahead For Piedmont Research Station

Plans to establish a Multi-Purpose Agricultural Research Station to serve the Southern Piedmont area of Virginia are moving forward according to Dr. P. Howard Massey, Associate Dean of the Va. Tech College of Agriculture.

A Site Screening Committee, composed of T. L. Copley of Mecklenburg County, W. S. Adkisson, Jr. Halifax County, R. C. Porter, Va. Tech, and J.L Tramel, Jr. Va.Tech, investigated some 30 sites suggested by local groups and individuals in the area.

Points considered by the Committee in evaluating the proposed sites included soil groups available, uniformity of the soils, topography and terrain of the area, potential sources of irrigation water, present land use, and location.

Dean Massey stated that a report from the Site Screening Committee listed nine potential sites that were recommended for further detailed investigation for soil suitability by a team of soils specialists. According to Dean Massey, the nine sites slated for further study are dispersed throughout the 21-county area which the station is proposed to serve. He expects the team of soils specialists to complete their detailed investigations of these sites by early fall.

An area of approximately 1,000 acres suitable for research on all the important agriculture al enterprises of the area, including crops, livestock, and forestry is needed to establish the proposed facility.

The 1970 General Assembly passed a resolution endorsing the proposal. A request for 1,100,000 dollars to establish the station has been submitted to the Governor for consideration by the General Assembly during the 1972 session. Dr. T. Marshall Hahn, President of Va. Tech, said this request was the number one priority in the Research Division's capital outlay budget.

Town Authorizes Plans For New Sewage Treatment Plant

Pamplin Seeks GA$ For Firetruck

That fire truck in the photo still needs a lot of GA$ to make it go up the hill to $12,500 says fire chief H. J. St. John (right) as he and Weldon Covington, pres. and Herbert Richardson, v. pres. of Pamplin Vol. Fire Dept. set out on a financial campaign to raise funds for a new fire truck. The signboard is next to the Post Office in Pamplin. Donors can mail in checks if they care to the treasurer, Stuart Farrar, or see any other officer or member of the Fire Dept. Each Dollar will help PUSH the truck up the hill!

Landowners Are Reminded Of 'Car' Ordinance

Appomattox Town Council, meeting Monday night, gave authorization for preparation of plans for a sewage treatment plant and feeder lines.

The authorization and discussion of town needs and future planning was part of a tour of almost all of the town-owned properties and facilities. The tour included the Town-County sanitary fill, just off Rt. 604 south and west of the town. Also, the present waste treatment plant, the sewage lagoon, wells 6, 5 and one and the garage and storage space on Linden St.

Mayor H. B. Pack reported the content of a special meeting held Wed., June 9 with was attended by councilmen, the mayor and state officials, including W. S. Slagle, State Water Control Board representative, Morris Brown, Health director, State Dept. of Health and the town's engineer representative, C. T. Elliott, who is associated with Hankins and Anderson, Counsulting Engineers of Richmond.

According to Water Control Board authorities and the consulting engineers Appomattox finds itself in the position of being unable to provide connect connections for a proposed shopping center because of the limited capacity of both the sewage treatment plant and the sewage lagoon. Hankins and Anderson has been requested to draw up plans for a plant and feeder lines, capable of serving 2,320 persons, estimated population by the year 2,000.

According to mayor H. B. Pack the last of the town's outstanding water bonds (in $5,000 demonination) were paid last month. Sewer bonds were paid up last year and the town has now no outstanding indebtedness. That's just as well, says the mayor, because "by the time you get your system paid for, it is out-of-date or needs to be enlarged." The sewage plant was built in 1937 and the lagoon in 1964.

There's also the matter of a fire truck to pay for. Concerning other matters, Councilman T. E. (Sony) Conner pointed out the deadline for screening junked cars was April 29, 1971, according to a zoning ordinance adopted by the town two years ago. Wrecked or inoperable cars must be screened, either by natural growth or by fencing. Conner also reminded Council that there are in the town refrigerators, left outside buildings, in which a child could become
